SESSION NO.1

STAGE SETTING AND MACRO LANDSCAPE IN THE FIELD OF ARCHITECTURE

Building a practice, while also driving change in a traditionally male-dominated field, requires a clear plan and courage to push for progress both personally and professionally.

In this workshop participants will discover the building blocks to drive that change. They will gain an understanding of women in the workplace today, barriers they encounter, and why organizations need to leverage their female talent for workforce and market advantage. They will reflect on their own role as an agent of change for gender equality, and dive into creating their own personal action plan for career advancement.

- Foundational understanding of women in the field of architecture today, including national trends and shifting demographics
- Best practices from leading organizations that are promoting women and supporting advancement and inclusion
- Common barriers and enablers encountered, including systemic barriers (such as the theme of balance) that are causing women to abandon professional careers prematurely

CON-ED : 1HR

TAKING CHARGE OF YOUR OWN CAREER

- Benefits of women running their own business and earning more wealth, including an understanding of why money in women's hands is so powerful for social and economic progress
- Self assessment on attributes of high performers who actively manage their own career journey, including the benefits of risk taking, personal branding, networking and confidence levels, and the notion of balance for working mothers and female entrepreneurs
- New tools to use to assess career opportunities personal and professional growth, including career mapping and advancement frameworks

RESILIENCY, BALANCE AND MANAGING YOUR PRACTICE

Risk management is integral to architectural design. It is also essential and integral to architects!

In the last few decades there has been significant research in to professional burnout - its causes, stages and symptoms as well as its 'cures' and prevention.

Most simply, burnout results in a loss of three things: energy, enthusiasm and professional confidence.

This session will alert participants to the signs of burnout. Each person will leave the session with a questionnaire allowing them to self-evaluate their current risk.

KEY COMPONENTS TO RESILIENCE

Some aspects of resilience are connected to personality, but the vast majority are about three things - our thinking, emotional health and behavior choices. This session is very interactive and practical. Using a coaching approach, participants will create their own personal action plan. "Balance" looks different to each of us, but the principles remain the same. This session will be a guided tour of key components to resilience. Each person will also receive a resource list to further their learning and highlight resources they can make use of.
